

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

December 1, 2023

Lewis County Health System Welcomes OB/GYN Georges Akl, MD

LOWVILLE, NY— Lewis County Health System is pleased to announce Obstetrician and Gynecologist Georges Akl, MD, FACOG, has joined the Women's Health Center medical staff. He brings over ten years of OB/GYN experience and is Board Certified in Obstetrics and Gynecology.

"Dr. Akl is a valuable addition to our women's health team," stated Lewis County Health System Chief Executive Officer Gerald R. Cayer. "Residents depend on the services they receive at our Women's Health Center, and we know that Dr. Akl will further enhance our ability to meet the obstetric and gynecologic needs of the women of Lewis County and surrounding areas."

Dr. Akl received his medical degree from the Lebanese University, Beirut, Lebanon, in 2008, later completing his OB/GYN residency at SUNY Upstate Medical University, Syracuse. In the time since, he has become well known within his space for his comprehensive approach to women's health, commitment to patients and their diverse needs, and his extensive knowledge of procedures such as advanced laparoscopic and minimally invasive GYN surgeries.

"Dr. Akl's commitment to women's health and his extensive surgical and obstetrical experience will bring great skills to our team and help us better serve the women of our community," stated LCHS Chief Medical Officer for Employed Practices Sean Harney, M.D.

His professional affiliations include the American Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology (ABOG), American Medical Association (AMA), Oneida County Medical Society, Medical Society of the State of N.Y. (MSSNY) and MSSNY Delegate, Chenango County.

"I look forward to working with the women's health team and providing OB/GYN care for the women of Lewis County and the North Country," stated Georges Akl, M.D.

Dr. Akl will provide an array of medical and surgical obstetrical and gynecological care ranging from routine healthy woman exams, pregnancy, contraception, infections, endometriosis, pelvic pain, menstrual disorders, cervical dysplasia, uterine fibroids, infertility, menopause, urinary incontinence, overactive bladder, pelvic organ prolapse, vulvodynia, and many others.

Dr. Akl joins F. Lee Dutton, MD, and Family Nurse Practitioners Danah Ernst and Hali Reid at the Women's Health Center, located in the Medical Arts Building on the main hospital campus in Lowville.

For more information or to make an appointment with Dr. Akl, please call 315-376-5475.

###

In photo: Georges Akl, MD, FACOG